OBITUARY

Mrs. Daisy Belle Loftis was born in Yoakum, Texas to Albert Hillyer and Jane Johnson Hillyer; she was the youngest of six children.

She attended school in Yoakum.

She joined St. John Methodist Church in Yoakum and was baptized by Reverend Riley Sodia.

She was united in marriage to Henry Ross in 1924; to this union one child, a daughter (Arnita), was born.

Mrs. Loftis moved to Dallas and in 1926 she married Curtis Loftis. To this union three sons were born: Charles, Curtis, and Edwin.

She joined St. Paul Methodist Church under the pastorate of Rev. L. L. Haynes, Sr. and has been a faithful member for more than three decades.

Mrs. Loftis served diligently and untiringly in the Senior Choir and always answered "Yes" to any call. She was a sweet singer in Israel.

Her Christian personality was of such versatility that she was able to work in any department of the Church.

The radiance of her wonderful personality can be traced to three factors in her early life. She was the product of a good Christian home. Her parents, God fearing people and devoted to the cause of Christ in the world, reared their family in an atmosphere of Christian faith.

The public school of Yoakum was equipped with teachers who with patience and tender care worked diligently to adequately prepare the young minds entrusted to them.

St. John Methodist Church, in Yoakum, where she made her church home, from her earliest memory had a tremendous influence in her life.

She is survived by: One daughter, Mrs. Arnita Shaw, three sons, Charles, Curtis and Edwin Loftis, all in Dallas; fifteen grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. R. Hardaway, Dallas; Mrs. Jessie Lewis, Yoakum, Texas; Mrs. Lucille White, Ft. Worth, Texas; one brother, M. Polk, Corpus Christi, Texas; other relatives and many friends.
